You will skip this covered first stitch at the beginning of the next round, which will mean that there are only 11 stitches numbered on the photo for the next round. With very early computers not yet able to illustrate, all the graphs and charts were hand drawn and colored, and mechanical boards were laid out by hand for each and every page for printing. If row 23 of the chart is the last row worked, then [p1, k1tbl] 31, 32, 39, 40 times. I hope your cowl is coming along beautifully: Slip all sts purlwise pwise with Y1 in front of work and Y2 in back of work. In a meticulous process, each illustration was knit, then pre-sketched, and finally hand drawn and colored, and swatches were knit and mounted for photography. Once the kids go back to school I should be able to start doing more videos! Look between the needle tips as you work to be sure the layers have not become locked together and run your fingers up from underneath, between the two socks, all the way to the needles.
