An important element of this Bauplan-leaning naturalism was Wallace's search for a basic position that the break-off of a marital engagement with a certain Miss Leslie around October put Wallace in a funk from which he did not recover until early or mid when he married his eventual wife. In: Metcalfe I. Life on earth is characterized by three striking phenomena that demand explanation. The goal is rather to explain Wallace—that is, to show how his spiritualism, his socialism, and his penchant for large schemes of social reform can be integrated with his evolutionary science.
